Nature-based Solutions in Practice: Insights, Inclusion & Impact

Nature-based Solutions (NbS) are increasingly integrated into climate adaptation and disaster risk reduction (DRR) efforts, yet practitioners often face unclear definitions, unrealistic expectations, and limited guidance on implementation. This event invites a grounded conversation on what NbS can—and cannot—achieve in real-world contexts. Together, we will explore practical examples, discuss how to ensure inclusivity and tangible local benefits, and unpack the challenges of financing and sustaining NbS over time. With a focus on applied insights, this event aims to support practitioners in navigating the complexities of designing and delivering effective, equitable, and context-specific NbS interventions.

Are you supporting and implementing projects and programmes related to climate change and disaster risk reduction, with an interest in learning and exchanging on the importance of NbS for climate and disaster resilience?

Join us to share and learn from existing experience of platform member organizations and their partners, as well as other organizations and stakeholders involved in providing, using and, assessing NbS in the context of international cooperation.
